Presidential Roundtable: QS Arab Forum 2024

Yesterday, at the very successful QS Arab Forum 2024, I moderated an engaging presidential roundtable on "Fueling Collaborative and Ethical Research towards Building Knowledge Economies in the Arab World in the Era of AI." I was joined by my colleagues, Prof. Bassam Alameddine, President of Gulf University for Science and Technology in Kuwait, and Dr. Shadi Hijazi, Principal Consultant at QS, as co-moderators .

Many thanks to Dr. Ashwin Fernandes, QS Executive Director for the Middle East, Africa, and South Asia, for organizing this roundtable, and to Prof. Samiha Jarrah, President of Applied Science Private University in Amman, for hosting the forum and roundtable.

We had over 40 university presidents from across the Arab world debating the topic, with a total of more than 80 Arab universities represented at senior levels.

Ethical and collaborative frameworks to support AI research were discussed in relation to advancing knowledge economies in the Arab world.

Many thanks to the QS and Applied Science Private University teams for the wonderful job they have done
