Today, the OTMC 2024 conference, held in the historic town of Šibenik, Croatia, concluded successfully. The theme of this year's conference was "Building Sustainable Futures: The Power of Public-Private Collaboration." The conference was organized by the International Project Management Association (IPMA), the Croatian Association for Construction Management, the University of Zagreb's Faculty of Civil Engineering, the Croatian Association for Project Management - IPMA Hrvatska, and BuildingSMART Croatia. Approximately 400 attendees participated, making it a vibrant gathering of professionals and academics.

It was a pleasure connecting with many old and new colleagues, including Prof. Mladen Vukomanović, President of IPMA; Mr. Badr Burshaid بدر بورشيد, President of the Global Project Management Forum; Mr. Dirk Bochar, Secretary General of ENGINEERS EUROPE; and my friends and colleagues Prof. Anita Cerić, Prof. Ivica Završki, Prof. Kalle Kahkonen, Dr. Rebeka D. Vlahov, PhD, Vladana Stepanovic, Jasna Bojanić Dujmović, PMP,A-CSM,SAFe-LPM, Dr. Amin Saidoun and Dr. Vladimir Obradovic among many others.

Tomorrow, I leave for Zagreb, and on Sunday, I head back to Abu Dhabi. I am pleased to have attended this conference and delivered a keynote address. Most importantly, I have been exposed to the excellent work by IPMA, and I will explore how ADU can become more involved.

Croatia is a beautiful country with friendly and generous people, and Šibenik is an amazing historical town. Thank you for an amazing and rewarding conference! I am sharing some photos from the conference and the country.
