Pakistan Mango Festival

Yesterday, I had the distinct pleasure of attending the Pakistan Mango Festival at Le Royal Meridien in Abu Dhabi. I extend my heartfelt thanks to His Excellency Faisal Tirmizi, the Pakistan Ambassador to the UAE, for the gracious invitation, his remarkable generosity, and for being a great friend to me personally and to ADU. My colleague, Shoukat Hussain, was also in attendance.

It was truly an amazing gathering, buzzing with vibrant energy and camaraderie. I had the opportunity to meet many wonderful individuals, including Dr. Muhammad Farhan, the event organizer, and Ms. Rujoom Qamar, a well-known social media influencer.

The celebration of this beloved fruit not only highlighted Pakistan's agricultural richness but also fostered connections among mango enthusiasts and cultural ambassadors alike.

Over 400 varieties of mangoes are grown in Pakistan, out of which 25 to 30 types are cultivated on a commercial scale.

This is the second time I have attended the Pakistan Mango Festival. I attended last year's festival in Dubai, and it was also amazing.
