

Ghassan Aouad

Chancellor of Abu Dhabi University, Past President ...
5d

The Power of Engaging LinkedIn Articles

I truly enjoy reading articles on LinkedIn. There is something special about the in-depth content that many writers share. These articles often explore intriguing ideas and provide valuable insights that help me grow both personally and professionally.

When I open LinkedIn I seek out pieces that delve into topics I care about, such as leadership, technology, and career development. Writers share their experiences, research, and tips, making the reading experience enriching.

In-depth content encourages critical thinking. It challenges my perspectives and motivates me to learn more. In some instances I, I discover ideas that I can apply in my own work or daily life. This is why I appreciate well-crafted articles instead of surface-level information.

In a world filled with quick posts and shallow content, LinkedIn articles stand out. They offer substance and depth, making my reading time truly valuable. I look forward to uncovering new insights and expanding my knowledge through these engaging articles.

The only things I dislike are when people use other posts to promote their companies or products, and when individuals write asking for jobs, knowing that this is an HR process.

#LinkedIn #Reading #PersonalDevelopment
#ProfessionalGrowth #CriticalThinking #CareerDevelopment
#DeepContent #EngagingArticles

Hamad Odhabi Professor Barry O'Mahony Bassam Mura, MBA
Noor Al Masri Khulud Abdallah Abu Dhabi University

